Syngenta Launches Bioline Biologicals

Chris Beytes

Syngenta Crop Protection has officially launched Syngenta Bioline in the U.S. Bioline is a range of 20 different biological control agents, including beneficial insects, mites and nematodes, for controlling greenhouse and nursery pests, such as thrips, aphids, whiteflies, fungus gnats and mites.

Bioline also includes two pheromones that can be used as monitoring tools. And they'll have plenty of information about storing and releasing their beneficials, along with technical support about when and how beneficials and traditional pest control products can be used together for maximum efficacy.
