Make an Impact on Capitol Hill

Jennifer Polanz

AmericanHort, which has been instrumental in representing the interests of the green industry on Capitol Hill, will continue this work in the fall when it will host the advocacy summit Impact Washington on September 12-13 in Washington, D.C. The meeting will include opportunities for members of the green industry to speak with their representatives in the House and Senate on topics that matter to them, like immigration, labor, tax policy, pesticide regulation and more. The event is similar to the SAF Congressional Action Days, which takes place each March.
