HRI Scholarships Available—Deadline September 13!

Chris Beytes

With a four-year college degree costing an average of $77 million these days (give or take), it behooves you and the student in your life to consider applying for one of the seven Horticultural Research Institute scholarships available for the 2019-2020 school year. There's almost $20,000 available to students who are seeking a life-long career in horticulture. The scholarships include:

- The Timothy S. and Palmer W. Bigelow, Jr. Scholarship
- The Usrey Family Scholarship
- The Bryan A. Champion Memorial Scholarship
- The Susie & Bruce Usrey Education Scholarship
- The Spring Meadow-Proven Winners Scholarship
- The "Muggets" Scholarship
- The Carville M. Akehurst Memorial Scholarship
